INTRODUCTION

The infrastructure sector is the spine of the economy. Hence from time to time, development is required to ensure the financial stability of any country. Earlier the government sector was solely vested with the responsibility of providing funding to the infrastructure sector.

The financing of infrastructure and large-scale projects – in the mining industry, transportation and telecommunications sectors and energy industry, among many others – continues to be a top priority for financial institutions, corporates, governments and emerging economies across the globe.

But the need for progress in modern times has brought the private sector's interest to invest in the upcoming projects for the infrastructure sector. It has changed the game of the infrastructure sector. The government sector is sometimes unable to provide financing for infrastructure due to inadequate budgetary resources and other constraints. Hence in order to meet the level of world-class infrastructure of developed countries, the private sector involvement is mandatory now.

With the amount of capital involved typically trillions of dollars, there is an increased need for practitioners in this space to utilise a range of methods to deliver the long-term financing of regional, national and international infrastructure projects and large-scale projects. To this end, types of financing likely to remain popular include public and private sector projects, as well as public-private partnerships (PPP).

“MYRIAD PROLIFIQUE Expertise -
WE can provide assistance across the entire infrastructure project lifecycle”

Financing refers to how project developers pay upfront for infrastructure. As such, it refers to how governments or private companies “find” the money (through equity or debt instruments) to meet the upfront costs for the design, construction and early operating costs of an infrastructure asset. MYRIAD PROLIFIQUE offers solutions for structuring bankable projects, attracting private investment and project funding partner.

Our “financing solutions” are individually tailored to our clients’ projects and often includes raising project financing, working with governments or government entities to identify financial support for specific projects such as funding injections, ECA-backed project financing and guarantees in order to offer risk mitigation for private investors. Government guarantees transfer the project risks from private owners to the Government which gives investors confidence that they will be repaid even if the project company which owns the asset is unable to make repayments.
